NAESB INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHTS POLICY CONCERNING CONTRIBUTIONS AND COMMENTS

- (1) As a standards development organization, the North American Energy Standards Board (“NAESB”) receives and accepts Contributions from many Participants in the course of developing voluntary standards and model business practices.
- (2) Any Contribution submitted to NAESB specifically identified by the contributor at the time of contribution as being subject to any intellectual property right restriction will be addressed on a case by case basis by the NAESB executive management.
- (3) Except as may be specifically and individually modified in (2), above, each Participant in the development of a NAESB Standard or Model Business Practice: grants to NAESB a perpetual, irrevocable, non-exclusive, royalty-free, worldwide license under any intellectual property interest that the Participant has in a Contribution submitted by the Participant to NAESB in the course of developing the Standard or Model Business Practice to do the following: (i) copy, publish, and distribute the Contribution; (ii) prepare derivative works of the Contribution and copy, publish, and distribute such derivative works and (iii) sublicense others to perform the activity described in (i) and (ii). Such license extends to all successors in interest.
- (4) All Participants warrant that Participant has the authority to bind Participant to the obligations in this Intellectual Property Rights Policy.

Definitions

Participant means any person, regardless of membership status, that submits a Contribution to NAESB through any channel or participates in the course of developing a NAESB Standard or Business Model Practice.

Standard or Model Business Practice means any written document published by NAESB that memorializes a NAESB standard.

Contribution means any idea, procedure, process, system, method of operation, concept, principle, or discovery conveyed during the standards development process.
